Legislators not backing tax plan yet

by Douglas Backstrom

State Rep. Harry "Babe" Woodyard, R-Chrisman and State Sen. Max Coffey, R-Charleston, said they will not make a commitment to a four-year income tax plan until the plan has been finalized.

Recently, Gov. Jim Thompson agreed to back a four-year state income tax increase rather than the permanent tax hike he proposed earlier.

David Fields, Thompson's press secretary, said the four-year income tax plan would:

- raise gasoline prices 3.5 cents.
- raise car license plate prices from $18-24 for large cars and $30-$48 for small cars.
- raise the liquor tax by a total of $50 million.
- raise truck drivers' road fees by a total of $28 million.
- raise state exemption tax from 1,000 to 12,000 by 1985.
- give a property tax break to low-income disabled senior citizens.

Woodyard said he believes Thompson will accept the four-year tax plan.

However, Woodyard said he would not determine "whether it is right or wrong" until he sees the finalized plan. "I won't commit myself on how I feel about it because the plan is not completed—and until Eastern gets its share of money," Woodyard said.

Coffey also said he could not commit himself to the proposed tax plan until he is sure of the plan's benefits and effects.

However, Coffey and Woodyard both agreed that if the tax proposal is passed higher education should receive some of the money.

"It's hard to determine how much money we need for higher education," Coffey said. He added "we need an increase in funding."

Without a tax increase, Thompson will need to cut $800 million from state spending for fiscal year 1984.

Tuition hike, program cuts likely

Vicki Vass
Melinda Wilson

U.S. Rep. Daniel Crane, R-Danville, and State Rep. Harry "Babe" Woodyard, R-Chrisman, said Monday that higher tuition and more budget cuts are inevitable in the future of higher education.

Both legislators spoke in the Union Grand Ballroom at the "Conference on Higher Education" sponsored by the Student Senate Legislative Committee.

"It's easier to be Santa Claus than to be a politician," Crane said. However, he added, "Someone has to make cuts; in some cases we just have to do it."

Woodyard said, "I see no other alternative than a 60-percent tuition increase and cuts in programs."

Woodyard also expressed his pleasure about Gov. Jim Thompson's plan for the state budget.

"I think he's totally wrong. In a political sense he's raised the issue toward Democrats," Woodyard said. "It's a horrible budget plan and it will hurt people."

Thompson currently is proposing a tax increase. He has said some of the revenues raised from the proposed increase could be used to return needed funds to higher education.

Student Body President Terry Teele talked to Crane about the future of higher education.

"Build the futures of tomorrow. Build the minds and future of making a good career. Put money in tomorrow," Teele said.

Crane responded, "Where do you think the money comes from? Do you think a fairy godmother comes down from the sky and pays it?"

"No—it's paid by property taxes," Crane added.

Woodyard said students should continue to write letters asking for higher education support to legislators in their district.

Woodyard also said those most hurt by the proposed $500 tuition hike will be students in the middle class income level. He said he believed a hike will go into effect for next year.

However, Woodyard said he believed the hike will not be as high as $500. "A tuition hike will happen, but not of that magnitude."

Woodyard said he thinks most of the Illinois State Scholarship Commission funding should go toward public school students and not private school students.

However, he noted, "We don't have the votes to change it. There are 59 districts in Illinois and 56 of those contain private schools."

Cost estimates delay approval of paramedic program

Michael Kuo

The Charleston City Council will postpone cost projections and fiscal estimates before deciding whether to implement the proposed paramedic program for Charleston, city officials said Monday.

The council placed a letter of agreement to initiate the program on file for public inspection at its April 5 meeting. "It died out on us," Mayor Clancy Jeffers said. "The last thing we heard about those survey results," he added, referring to a survey conducted by Eastern instructor Gary Clark's marketing class.

The survey indicated that Charleston residents want the city to implement a paramedic program and that most residents would be "willing to endure a property tax increase" to fund the program.

Ambulance Director Tom Watson said last week the city has put the proposal "on hold until they find out what fiscal funding will be."

Funding the paramedic program has become the subject of city controversy because the council has received three different cost estimates for the program.

Initial cost projections were presented to commissioners on Jan. 18 by Janet Poole, mobile intensive care coordinator for Sarah Bush Lincoln Health Center.

However, former City Planner Larry Stoeber later sent council members a memorandum outlining implementation costs for the program.

Ambulance Supervisor Tom Watson told the council April 5 that Stoeber's figures were inflated, and presented cost estimates nearly three times less than Stoeber's.

Watson said the city would need to spend about $10,339 per vehicle to implement the program.

Watson said his figures were lower than those in the Stoeber memorandum partly because firemen are willing to take paramedic training in their spare time, rather than while they are on-duty.

Stoeber said last week, "My figures are as correct as his are."

Stoeber said Watson's cost estimate is "stringing out capital costs over three years, which is ridiculous. If you've got three vehicles, they should be equipped."

Stoeber also said Watson proposed a $1,500 bonus for firemen after they have received paramedic training, adding that could total nearly the same amount as paying the firemen overtime to take paramedic training while on-duty.

Commissioner Olga Durham said last week she has reservations about the willingness of firemen to train on their spare time. "I didn't think they were all that much for it," Durham said.

Watson said Monday that he hopes the council will consider "all" cost projections when considering initiation of the paramedic program.

However, Commissioner Wayne Lanman said Monday that Watson's cost projections "would be what we'd look at."

If the council approves the paramedic program, specific funding allocations and bid approvals would take place.

Lanman said the council may approve a referendum asking local residents if they would endure a property tax increase to fund the program.

He said the program would be funded through the ambulance department fund and the city's general revenue funds.

Dogs were ransom for hostages

NORWICH, N.Y.—A heavily armed couple freed the last of 14 hostages Monday after police returned two of the 43 dogs that had been taken from them two years ago.

The couple surrendered later in the afternoon, said Chenango county Sheriff Moe Eccleston.

Lawrence B. and Christine Gladstone of nearby Preston, N.Y. entered the Chenango County Office Building at about 9:20 a.m. and took 14 people hostage, demanding the return of their 43 dogs taken from them two years ago by animal control officials, police said.

Police said the couple was armed with two shotguns and one rifle, a detonator and a box of ammunition.

Police had cordoned off the building and began talking with the couple, who released their hostages in several groups throughout the day after six hours of negotiations.

Memorandum denounces aide

WASHINGTON—A Justice Department attorney has accused the Reagan administration's chief civil rights enforcer of ignoring the recommendations of career attorneys and under cutting the laws and regulations protecting handicapped and retarded people.

In a response released Monday, Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, head of the department's civil rights division, called the attorney's charges "misleading in virtually every important respect" and "neither fair nor responsible."

In an extraordinary inch-thick memorandum to Attorney General William French Smith, civil rights attorney Timothy Cook, 29, said, "Your intervention is necessary to prevent the leadership of the civil rights division from emasculating civil rights enforcement in these areas."

Panel reports on arms reduction, experts report chance is unlikely

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Reagan administration's attempts to spur major reductions in Soviet land-based missiles have "virtually no chance" at the bargaining table, a Carnegie panel said Monday.

The bipartisan group also expressed reservations about a nuclear freeze, saying that could prove a "two-edged sword" by precluding the development of weapons which actually could enhance strategic balance.

The Kremlin's rigid bureaucracy, wedded to long-term military planning, is highly unlikely to agree to radically reduce the heavy intercontinental ballistic missiles with account for about 75 percent of Soviet nuclear strength, said the report.

But while implicitly criticizing the administration's proposals for a strategic arms reduction treaty and its stress on air-tight verification procedures, the panel said the Soviets may be willing to accept more limited restrictions on nuclear weapons.

"While Leonid Brezhnev's passing and Yuri Andropov's accession to the top post produced some tentative signs of shifts in Soviet policy at home and abroad, there were no signs that the new leadership would reverse course in arms control," the report said.

It was prepared by the Carnegie Endowment's Panel on U.S. Security and the Future of Arms Control. The chairmen were William G. Hyland, a leading analyst on Soviet affairs in the Nixon and Ford administrations, and Joseph S. Nye Jr., a security specialist under President Carter.

Shultz hopes to win agreement

CAIRO, Egypt (AP)—Secretary of State George P. Shultz said Monday he thinks he can win an agreement for withdrawal of foreign troops from Lebanon, and indicated the United States would offer to help guarantee Israel's security to speed an accord.

"President Reagan has sent me here to show America's determination to help in the process of peace in the Middle East," Shultz said following his 13-hour journey from Washington.

He said he would stay in the region as long as there was hope of achieving a withdrawal agreement, which he described as "very do-able."

Shultz indicated, however, the actual timetable for getting about 60,000 foreign troops out of Lebanon may be worked out later.

Shultz said he would bring up the possibility of an expanded U.S. role in Lebanon during discussions with Israeli and Lebanese leaders.

Shultz told reporters he also may discuss Reagan's faltering Middle East peace initiative during his trip, but that his chief aim will be a troop withdrawal agreement.

He said he has ideas for resolving some of the disputes between Israel and Lebanon, which focus on security in south Lebanon, and is prepared to shuttle between the two countries if necessary.

Voting set for instructors to fill committee spots

by Carl Pugliese

Six instructors will be elected Tuesday and Wednesday for positions on the campus advisory presidential search committee.

Faculty Senate Elections Chairman Richard Goodrick said only full-time teaching faculty members will be eligible to vote. "We have a list of 452 faculty members," that will be checked when a person votes, he said.

Three instructors from the College of Arts and Sciences and three instructors from all other areas of the university will be elected for spots on the committee, Goodrick noted.

Of the three positions from the College of Arts and Sciences, one person shall be selected from humanities, one from sciences and one from social studies.

In the humanities area, four faculty members are vying for a spot on the committee. English instructors Sharon Bartling and Bruce Guernsey, speech-communication instructor Janet Norberg, and journalism instructor James Saunders are the humanities area candidates.

Three instructors were nominated to represent the sciences area. Zoology instructor Richard Funk, chemistry instructor Ellen Keiter, and mathematics instructor Claire Krukenberg are the sciences candidates.

Three instructors were also nominated from the social studies area.

The faculty members nominated are sociology instructor Johnetta Jones, history instructor Herb Lasky, and political science instructor Andrew McNitt.

Three instructors will represent the schools of business, education, fine arts, home economics, technology and health, physical education and recreation, as well as the library and counseling center.

The faculty members nominated for the last three posts are management and marketing instructor Edward Brankey, physical education instructor John Craft, home economics instructor Joyce Crouse, elementary and junior high education instructor Dale Downs and accountancy, data processing and finance instructor Timothy Gover.

Other candidates for the three posts include library services faculty member Karl Grisso, management and marketing instructor Marilyn Oglesby, health education instructor Martin Reed, physical education instructor J.W. Sanders and educational psychology and guidance instructor Robert Saltmarsh.

Elections for the positions will be conducted from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday in the east end of the Union Old Ballroom.

Absentee voting is scheduled from 9 a.m. to noon Tuesday in Coleman Hall 213-J.

One-vote bill needs student support

Eastern students should write their Illinois legislators and encourage them to approve a package of bills which would give student representatives voting rights on college and university governing boards.

State Representative Lee Preston, D-Chicago, has introduced a package of six bills to the General Assembly which support one collective vote for the student representatives on each of the six Illinois university and college governing boards.

Currently, student board representatives are not allowed to vote on higher education issues that come before the boards. They are only allowed to make and second motions and to attend executive sessions.

Student representatives should have the right to cast, at the very least, one vote on their university and college governing boards because these boards make decisions which affect the quality and cost of a college education.

Eastern students deserve to have a voice in the decision-making processes of the Board of Governors, Eastern's governing board, because the board establishes their tuition and fee rates and approves requests for fund allocations that exceed $10,000.

As it now stands, the voice of Eastern students is heard through a BOG representative who is powerless to effect the outcome of a BOG vote. The representative can only make suggestions to the board, based on the wants and needs of his constituents, and then sit back and hope for the best.

This is not a very democratic way to run a governing board that so acutely affects the lives of Eastern students. If student board representatives were allowed to vote they could better represent the opinions of students on important matters such as tuition costs and who would best serve as Eastern's next president.

Students are the "consumers of education" and deserve a vote on their governing boards. Therefore, Eastern students should write their legislators, in whose hands the passage of the one-vote bill lies, and make them aware of the importance of a student vote on university and college governing boards.

Eastern loses teacher

Editor:

In May I will be leaving the hallowed halls of Eastern with many other students. Unfortunately, along with us one disillusioned instructor will be packing it in saying, "so much for higher education" and without this letter the student body would be none the wiser.

This instructor has taught for two years in our psychology department, and while doing so has brought much respect and recognition throughout the academic world with his research and publications. This "non-negotiable" instructor still had the time to receive high ratings and praise from the students he taught. He enjoyed his profession.

A position became available next year for which this instructor believed he was qualified, so he submitted his vita to the selection committee. This committee picked six applicants to present to the faculty, but his name was not there. I can only speculate about this oversight, because a meeting was held later and his name was added to the list.

It did seem apparent to me that a few members of the selection committee did not look at the qualifications of this man, but looked at their personal feelings instead. Whether it was from jealousy, fear of competition for professorship or just plain dislike, it was clear that the reputation of Eastern and the welfare of its students were not thought of. Surely in a department of psychology the instructors should be able to put personal biases aside and select from a standpoint of what is better for the department.

Future students in the psychology program will miss a learning experience which would have been enjoyable and educational. Eastern is losing an instructor who gave his all for his students and was politically murdered by a small group, within a department, for personal reasons.

We both leave in May. I'm happy because I have known him, he is sad because he loved teaching, but Eastern is the loser.

Disappointing 'note'

In regard to the past greek sing, I was disappointed in the fact that Ann Cavanaugh would not let Tau Kappa Epsilon enter the event.

Perhaps we were disorganized, but we were willing to sing and be a part of the greek system. If this is Cavanaugh's idea of unity, she has a lot to learn.

'Non-experts' give alternatives to PIK plan

Everybody seems to be pretty excited over the government's Payment-In-Kind program, but I still have my doubts about the whole thing.

The experts say that participation in the PIK program will cause nearly one-third of the nation's farmlands to lie idle next year. President Reagan says the country will begin reducing its grain surplus while giving its hard-working farmers a helping hand.

I have no qualms with reducing our grain surplus and certainly believe our farming friends deserve a break. Lord knows they work hard enough, but I can't understand how a country faced with billion dollar deficits can afford to give away a valuable asset such as the grain surplus we've accumulated.

You may question my use of the word "asset," but that's exactly what the grain surplus is for America. Yet, instead of selling the grain to someone who needs it, the government is giving it away.

Who do you think will make up the difference when the government, which has been figuring this grain into the budget as an asset for years, falls short of its projected income? That's right. You, me and the Girl Scouts.

Of course, I'm just like everybody else; I don't have a good answer to the nation's budgetary woes either.

However, because I've often found that the people with the best answers are those who know virtually nothing about the question, I decided to ask some people on the street what they would do with the grain surplus if they were making the decisions on Capitol Hill.

First, I called up a theater expert I know. "It's Michael Kuo at the Daily Eastern News," I said. "How do you think the government should deal with America's grain surplus?"

"Oh God. Ummm, why don't they give it to the poor?"

"How would you propose they accomplish that?"

Personal file:

Michael Kuo

"Pull trucks out, load them up, and give the stuff to the poor."

Good concept, but not enough detail, I thought. So I called up a 19th century American literature teacher and asked, "How should the government get rid of its surplus grain?"

"Good Lord, you want me to respond to that question seriously?"

After awhile, he finally decided the grain should be "circulated where it is needed."

The father of one of my friends, who is an organist, answered the same question this way:

"Hmmm," then silence.

I stifled the urge to prompt him. He might have been on the verge of an incredible insight.

Finally, he spoke. "I'm sure the government has been worried about that, too," he said.

My hopes were dashed. Then, out of the blue, he said, "I'd like to see something done in terms of food programs for impoverished countries."

At last, a worthwhile concept. Of course, the government would need something more to go on than "food programs for impoverished countries," but the reason we elect officials is so they can work out those sort of details.

The answers I received to the grain surplus question made me wonder why the real experts make so much money when it's the "non-experts" who make so much sense.

Rally against tuition hike to begin at Library Quad

by Kim Kelly

Students who are against a tuition hike will have a chance to make a hike of their own this week.

A dozen Illinois colleges will hold rallies and marches Thursday to show student and faculty support for Gov. Jim Thompson's tax increase in the name of higher education, Brian Nordin, state and campus coordinator of the events, said.

Nordin, an Eastern sophomore, said letters and petitions supporting the tax increase will be gathered from Tuesday through Thursday on the Library Quad and in Coleman Hall.

Eastern's rally will start at 3:30 p.m. on the Library Quad and will feature speeches by Democratic congressional candidates John Gwinn and Eric Jakobsson, Student Body President Terry Teele and Student Body President-elect John Cole, Nordin said.

Following the speeches, students will march from Old Main to the Charleston Post Office to send the petitions and letters to Gov. Jim Thompson, State Reps. Larry Stuffle and Harry Woodyard and State Sen. Max Coffey, he said.

Nordin said the group supports Thompson's tax plan "only because it is the only alternative to a tuition hike."

"All students who are upset with the idea of a tuition increase should come and do something, instead of sitting back," he said.

Evaluations to be presented at last Faculty Senate meeting

Evaluations of deans and department chairmen will be presented in final form to the Faculty Senate Tuesday, Chairman Jeffrey Lynch said.

Lynch said the evaluations will have to be approved by the senate before being presented to Stanley Rives, provost and vice president for academic affairs, for further approval.

Currently, Lynch said, there are no evaluations of deans and department chairmen for faculty members to complete.

In other business, the senate will discuss a proposal to be brought before the Council on Academic Affairs concerning the placement of plus and minus grades on student report cards, Lynch said.

He added that elections for next year's Faculty Senate officers will also be conducted at the meeting.

Lynch said Tuesday will be the last time the faculty senate will convene for business this year.

However, Lynch said faculty senate members will be attending a tea honoring seven retiring faculty members. The tea is scheduled for 2:30 p.m. May 3 in the Union 1895 room.

The senate will meet at 2:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Martinsville room.

Twain play set for last 5 O'clock

Eastern's 5 o'clock Theatre will present a one-act play written by Mark Twain Tuesday.

Director Becky Sage said "The Diary of Adam and Eve" has "both humorous and touching moments."

Sage, a senior, said the satire will be the last 5 o'clock Theatre production of the semester. She added that "The Diary of Adam and Eve" is one of Twain's less-known pieces.

Senior Mark Highland will play Adam, junior Nancy Slusser will play Eve and The Snake will be played by freshman Mike Moore, Sage said.

The free play will be presented at 5 p.m. Tuesday in the Playroom of the Doudna Fine Arts Center.

Student-parent workshop set

Students who have trouble dealing with parents who cannot adjust to college students' lifestyle may find help at a Counseling Center-sponsored workshop Tuesday.

Counseling Center Director Bud Sanders said he and counselor Genie Lenihan will explore strategies for dealing with conflicts that students face when they return home.

"Some parents expect their sons or their daughters to revert to the old high school rules on dating, hours, etc., when they return home," Sanders said.

"The year of the student varies, but freshmen experience this more so than anyone else because they have recently left as a high school senior. Some parents don't want to realize that and—for various reasons—are threatened," he added.

Sanders said he and Lenihan will try to show ways students can develop an adult/growing adult relationship with their parents.

The workshop, "Going Home," will be presented at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Union addition Charleston-Mattoon room.

New fire truck offers more aid

A fire truck purchased by Charleston last Tuesday will bring better fire protection to the community, officials said recently.

On April 19, the city council approved a $201,736 bid from Seagrave Inc. to purchase a ladder truck for the city's fire department.

Purchasing Director Steve Childress said Charleston needs a ladder truck to provide adequate protection to Eastern and the downtown area.

The new Seagrave vehicle, which will be delivered within 20 days, is equipped with a 100-foot ladder to enable firemen to combat possible fires in the city's downtown buildings and Eastern's residence halls, he added.

Charleston's current ladder truck is about 16 years old. If the new vehicle had not been purchased, repairs on the ladder, transmission and other areas would have been necessary on the old truck, Childress said.

AMA sets b-ball game

by Janine Maroon

The American Marketing Association is sponsoring a benefit basketball game Tuesday evening.

AMA will play the marketing management faculty in the benefit game which is expected to raise scholarship money for next year.

AMA hopes to raise funds by raffling off items donated by several area merchants, Paula Mannion, AMA former secretary, said Monday.

Also at the game, AMA will announce its second annual $50 scholarship award winner for this year.

The recipient is chosen from the members of the American Marketing Association by the four former executive officers and the adviser, Mannion said.

"It is a worthy cause that has generated a lot of excitement and made people aware of AMA," Mannion added.

The basketball game will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday in McAfee gym. The cost of the game is 50 cents.

Marvin cancels conference

The leadership conference scheduled last Friday was canceled by Eastern President Daniel E. Marvin, Student Activities Director Don Cook said Monday.

Cook said he did not know Marvin's reason for canceling the conference.

Glenn Williams, vice president of student affairs, also said he did not know the reason for the cancellation, but added that Marvin told him the cancellation was because of something "important."

Marvin was unavailable for comment Monday.

The conference, which was to include 12 campus organization and four faculty leaders, will be substituted by a luncheon the week before finals, Cook said.

The luncheon will be a "good-bye meeting" rather than a discussion of campus issues, he added.

Mainly student government leaders and students who have worked with Marvin will be invited to the luncheon, Cook said.

Representative position open

Following the resignation of admissions representative Bob Laskowski, a Chicago-based position as an Eastern admissions representative is available, Eastern's Director of Admissions John Beacon said.

Aggressiveness and self-motivation are necessary qualities for Eastern admissions representatives, he said.

Beacon said applicants must have a bachelor's degree and apply to Vice President for Student Affairs Glenn Williams by June 1.

The position will primarily involve recruiting high school students to Eastern. Representatives will visit high schools and community colleges, he said.

In addition, the representative will also represent Eastern at high school college night programs, he added.

The recruiter must also have knowledge of Eastern's academic catalog to explain Eastern's admission requirements to potential students, Beacon said.

Many college courses prepare you for a job in management. Sooner or later. But successfully completing Army ROTC will place you in a management job right after graduation.

It's definitely not a trainee job. You could be accountable for millions of dollars worth of equipment. And responsible for many of the Army's top technicians.

Pre-register now for ROTC. By listing MS1001 and MS1002 with your other classes, you'll be caught up with other cadets this year. Consider the advantages. No service obligation, scholarship competition, and a chance to look into the many facets of an Army Officer's career.

NBA playoffs to resume

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Now, about the problem-plagued Los Angeles Lakers.

The Portland Trail Blazers found no trace of trouble in the defending National Basketball Association champions Sunday when the Lakers drilled them 118-97 in the opener of their best-of-seven Western Conference semifinal playoff series. Portland will check again Tuesday night in Game Two in the Forum at Inglewood, Calif.

In Tuesday's other playoff action, Denver will open its Western semifinal series at San Antonio after defeating Phoenix 117-112 in overtime Sunday night to finish off the Suns in their mini-series.

Philadelphia, leading New York 1-0 in their best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal, plays at home against the Knicks Wednesday night after its 112-102 victory in Sunday's opener.

Boston, which eliminated Atlanta 98-79 Sunday in their mini-series, opens the other East semifinal at home against Milwaukee, also Wednesday night.

The Lakers limped into the playoffs with key forwards James Worthy and Bob McAdoo injured and some people wondered whether they could pull themselves together against Portland, which eliminated Seattle in two straight games.

Not to worry. Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 32 points, 14 in the first quarter as Los Angeles took control early. Jamaal Wilkes had 25 points and Earvin "Magic" Johnson added 19 points and 18 assists.

"We want to play better and we know we can," said Trail Blazers Coach Jack Rampsey. "We may have been a little fatigued, but we'll be back on Tuesday."

Brett continues hot hitting

KANSAS CITY, MO. (AP)—George Brett is hitting the ball left field, right field and center field. He's hitting the ball down the lines, to the gaps and over the fence.

In short, the Kansas City Royals' third baseman is hitting the ball like he did during his banner 1980 season, when he was the American League's Most Valuable Player.

Brett is hitting a league-leading .471, and his double and run-scoring single in Kansas City's 7-1 victory over Toronto Sunday extended his hitting streak to 13 games.

A two-time AL batting champion, who hit .390 in 1980, Brett is no stranger to hitting success. But even he can't explain his present pace.

"Whenever you're in a streak like I am, where you're hitting the ball hard consistently," said Brett, "you have to be in some kind of a trance or something."

"Your concentration and your fundamentals are just right in time. Everything's working together, in splitting portions or whatever."

Counting last season, Brett has hit safely in 19 consecutive games. This year, he has 24 hits in 51 at-bats, including 11 doubles, a triple and four home runs. That's a slugging percentage of .961. Twelve of his last 15 hits have been for extra bases.

Injury-riddled Panthers set to battle Illini

by Mike Lynch

Injuries, Eastern's baseball team's toughest barrier this season, are worrying the Panthers as they head into a Tuesday's game against the University of Illinois.

"I've never had a year like this before, the injuries are really going to take their toll on us the next couple of days," Eastern head coach Tom McDevitt said.

Eastern, 15-9, will attempt to even its series with Illinois, 19-17, 3 p.m. Tuesday at Monier Field.

"I'm just hoping that with all our injuries we don't embarrass ourselves Tuesday," McDevitt added. "All I want is for us to go out and do our best."

The Panthers' clash with the Illini will mark the second between the two teams this season: Illinois enters Tuesday's game holding a 1-0 series edge.

Eastern will be looking to avenge its April 12 loss to the Illini. The Panthers suffered from costly errors and the lack of clutch hitting in the 9-3 loss.

Eastern committed four errors. The Illini, on the other hand, turned the Panthers' mistakes into runs.

This time around, Eastern's ability to overcome its injuries will be the big story in turning back an Illini team which was rank 27th in the nation earlier this season.

The Panthers enter Tuesday's game without the services of their top four pitchers. Mick Freed and Kevin Gordon are suffering from injuries, while Marshall Crutcher, who appeared in two games this weekend, will not start Tuesday.

In addition, Eastern will be without outfielder-infielder Bryan Dillard and second baseman Steve Hall, who are battling a hand injury and a intestinal virus, respectively.

Hall, who is hitting .377, is a questionable starter for Tuesday's contest, McDevitt said.

Consequently, the loss of Hall and Dillard forced right fielder Neal Bertram to move to second base for a four-game series with Western Illinois last weekend.

"I thought for not having played or practiced at second base all year that Neal did a very fine job this weekend," McDevitt said.

McDevitt said Bertram is a tentative starter at second base Tuesday. Pitcher Kevin Smith, who replaced Bertram in right field this weekend, may find himself in a similar position against the Illini.

"Right now our line-up consists of eight position players and a pitcher," McDevitt said.

In addition to Eastern's other injury problems, the Panthers could lose sophomore pitcher Dave McWhorter to a shoulder injury.

"I have no idea who will get the start Tuesday, I'm just going to have to wait and see," McDevitt said.

Eastern pounded out 65 hits against Western and looks to continue its hot hitting Tuesday. The Panthers face Illinois after scoring 73 runs in their last six games.

Illinois is led offensively by first baseman Tim Richardson and designated hitter Gary Borg. Richardson is batting .400 with 36 runs batted in, while Borg is hitting .393 with an RBI output of 33.

In addition, outfielder Doug Jones leads Illinois with five home runs.

Home field to be dedicated

Softballers set to face Illinois State

Eastern's softball team will dedicate its home field Tuesday at 1:45 p.m. before hosting conference foe Illinois State University in a double-header.

The ceremony will introduce the new facility to Eastern, Eastern's Athletics Promotions Director Kevin Anglin said Monday.

"The name of the field has not been determined, because we aren't sure who to name it after," Anglin said. "But we do want some kind of ceremony for those people who worked to prepare the field."

Anglin said the field will be labeled the Women's Intercollegiate Softball Field for this season. "It is only a matter of time before the field would officially be named," he added.

For the Panthers, 15-7, Tuesday's contest marks their second meeting with Gateway Collegiate Athletic Conference-member Illinois State.

"This is an important conference game for us," Eastern head coach Deanna D'Abbraccio said. "Illinois State is a tough team."

Eastern, which enters Tuesday's play with a 5-2 GCAC record, recorded a 3-1 victory over Illinois State April 8 in Normal at the Redbird Invitational.

Illinois State has a 0-2 record after falling to the Panthers and losing 4-2 to Indiana State University Saturday at the Redbird Classic in Normal.

The Panthers registered their best offensive effort this season in turning back the Redbirds. However, the Redbirds—behind the hitting of Vickie Schaefer and Denise Sarna—could create problems for Eastern this time.

Schaefer and Sarna are batting .342 and .315, respectively.

Eastern will counter offensively with senior Nancy Kassebaum, who boasts a .447 batting average, and junior Mary Tiegs, who sports a .384 average.

In addition, freshman Tammi Rettig and junior Kathy Trnka round out Eastern's top offensive threats. Rettig and Trnka are batting .313 and .315, respectively.

The Panthers will also have their hands full against Illinois State pitchers Maxine McGlaughlin and Lynn Thompson.

McGlaughlin, 4-4, and Thompson, 4-6, enter Tuesday's double-header with 0.50 and 0.48 earned run averages, respectively.

D'Abbraccio has slated junior hurler Donna Ridgway and senior Kathy Richards as probable starters for Tuesday.

Ridgway, 6-3, faces the Redbirds with a 1.27 ERA, while Richards, 8-3, sports an ERA of 1.43.

Defensively, Eastern could have problems in keeping Illinois State off the base paths, D'Abbraccio said.

"We will definitely be working on our defense in practice Monday," D'Abbraccio added. "We need to get the number of errors we are committing down."

NFL coaches seek to draft Elway

NEW YORK (AP)—The John Elway derby accelerated Monday, with the Los Angeles Raiders thinking about offering Rookie of the Year Marcus Allen as part of a package to obtain the Baltimore Colts' No.1 pick in the National Football League draft.

A source close to the high-powered bargaining said the package could include a series of Raiders' first-round draft choices plus Allen, the sensational running back, in exchange for the right to pick the Stanford quarterback in Tuesday's draft.

The Raiders have one first-round choice—the 26th—this year. Elway is considered a "franchise" player along the lines of Joe Namath and Earl Campbell. He has told the Colts he doesn't want to play for them, and has expressed the desire to play for either a West Coast team or the Dallas Cowboys.

Elway also is being wooed by George Steinbrenner, owner of baseball's New York Yankees.

Other NFL teams believed to be in the bidding for the Colts' prized pick are the San Diego Chargers, possessors of three first-round selections, and the Cowboys, who reportedly have offered their No.1 choice—23rd overall—plus veteran players, possibly quarterback Danny White and defensive tackle Randy White.

Robert Irsay, owner of the Colts, was quoted as saying the Raiders "made a fantastic offer of draft choices and players and I think we'll take it." And Ernie Accorsi, Baltimore's general manager, said of the Raiders and the bidding: "Yes, they're in it and they're in it seriously. Both the Raiders and the Colts are maneuvering to make the package more attractive."
